

HANCOCK

CHARGED WITH STEALING
FROM A CASH REGISTER

Young Man Accused of Taking Thirty-Six Dollars From Saloon on Franklin Street—Arrested This Morning and Hearing Set for Next Tuesday Morning, October 19.

John Kinnonen was arrested last evening by Officer Harkins charged with pilfering from the cash register in the saloon of John Maki on Franklin street, and taking thirty-six dollars in cash. It is claimed that the money was appropriated while the bartender was enjoying a nap during a period when trade was slack. A Mr. Hendrickson, who lives in the rear of the saloon, heard the bell of the cash register ring, and looking into the place saw a man just going out of the door. She described the fellow and a warrant for the arrest of Kinnonen was issued on complaint of Maki.

The suspected young man was arraigned this morning before Justice Oliver, and pleaded not guilty. He claimed that he was drunk when he was in the saloon and does not remember what occurred there. He denies having taken the money, however. He was placed under five hundred dollar bond in default of which he was taken over to jail pending his hearing, which was set for next Tuesday morning.

FALLS INTO ELEVATOR
SHAFT WHILE PUSHING A CAR

A laborer at the Quincy smelter fell into an elevator shaft while at work yesterday afternoon, dropping a distance of about twenty feet and receiving painful injuries about the head and left thigh. The man was engaged in pushing a truck containing lime up the elevator, supposing that it was in its place in the elevator shaft. It wasn't, however, and the car was precipitated into the opening, the workman following it, being unable to stop quick enough to prevent the mishap. He was picked up at the bottom of the shaft covered with lime and carried into the boiler house, where his injuries were examined and attended to by Dr. Machette of Hancock. While the man's hurts are painful they are not of a very serious nature, and no permanent or dangerous results are looked for.

FRANK CONDON ELECTED
SECRETARY OF THE ELKS

Frank C. Condon was last evening elected as secretary of the Hancock lodge of Elks No. 281, at a social meeting held for the purpose. At the last regular meeting Daniel Fisher was elected to succeed Charles F. McAskill, resigned, but Mr. Fisher declined to serve owing to lack of time to devote to the position and also because the demands of his business affairs required all his attention. He therefore tendered his resignation, which was accepted and Mr. Condon was chosen for the office, as stated above. The choice is one that is most pleasing and gratifying to the members of the lodge and it is a foregone conclusion that Mr. Condon will fill the office most acceptably, he having the time at his disposal and the ability to care for the details of the office of secretary in a most satisfactory manner.

A Limited Censorship. What the censor cannot do is to give a certificate of approval for the public, and unless the public approves his license is of no value at all. On the other hand, he can deprive the public of the opportunity to approve, and in that power he is not a protection, but a menace and a bar to managers.—London Stage.

The Adolescent Boy

Paper Read by J. A. Van Dis, Y. M. C. A. State Boys' Secretary, at Recent Boys' Conference in Calumet

In opening, will say that the boy is a twentieth century discovery, and he is not a problem as some suppose, but rather misunderstood by a large majority of men, often by those who have most to do with the boy.

Theodore Roosevelt has well said that if we are to do anything for the average man we have got to begin with the boy. The chance of success lies in working with the boy, not with the man.

In understanding and dealing with the boy, we shall need to recognize several things, first of all his physical conditions. Authorities in the medical world tell us that the physical heart of the boy in his teens nearly doubles in size, the blood is driven into the veins at double the pressure it ever went before, and naturally means restlessness, activity and enthusiasm. It also means that emphasis should be placed on expression, rather than repression; it should be positive, rather than negative.

Second, a recognition of what is commonly known as the gang instinct. Little boys are individualistic; boys in their teens go in gangs. You will see the little fellows play games in which the individual excels, older boys play team games, basketball, football, baseball and the like, in which the teams win. Natural groups like this can be enlisted for righteousness and things that are clean under proper supervision, but left to themselves are likely to expand their energy in the opposite direction.

Third, a recognition of the complexity of the individual. To illustrate this,

Sunday for Bible study, but who also meet during the next week for social and physical improvement. It is not uncommon for such groups to go out on a Saturday afternoon for a hike to a nearby stream or lake, have their camp fire, sing their songs and tell their stories around the camp fire, sleep in the open and return the next morning after a refreshing swim to their Bible study. Needless to say, a class conducted under such environment held the boys' attention.

Fourth, A recognition of the boy's ability to do things. Very few people realize that boys can do anything worth while. They are real factors in the community, and an asset often underestimated. A boy's religion is expressed in doing, it is not in being. It is better to do, it is best to be. Therefore if you want the best it will be necessary to be righteous. This may be all right with an adult, but with the boy I would change the quotation and say, "It is best to do." I might draw on my experience in this state alone and keep you interested in what boys are actually doing in the school, Sunday school and Association for the extension of His kingdom. You cannot do anything for a boy, but you can do everything with a boy. A principle worth remembering.

Fifth, The boy deserves the best. Less than a decade ago anything was good enough in the church or association for the boys. Today we are having separate quarters and even buildings for boys with the best of equipment.

Root of All Wisdom. Burns: To know prudent, cautious self-control is wisdom's root.

ment. If we are going to hold the boy during these trying years we shall need to give him the best in the home, the school and the church. The boy will take care and appreciate anything that is given him of value. You may find an old table full of marks and initials carved in, but I have yet to see the polished piano marked up and deliberately cut by boys.

Sixth, The relation between sex and religion is a vital one. A high scientific authority claims that a man's love of life which includes love to the individual, to fellow men, to country and to God is so related that what affects the one affects the other and in the same degree if a boy ignorantly or willfully either temporarily or permanently impairs his powers of manhood to that same extent, he limits his capacity for true love for anybody or anything. The fiercest temptations in life that come to the adolescent boy have their root in sex and the cure comes not in the emphasis upon the horrors of impurity, but upon the positive side, the power and possibilities of a pure life.

Lastly, The recognition of the need of leadership. It has been said that character is not taught, it is caught, it grows not by precept, but by contagion. Boys consciously imitate the man they respect and admire. Therefore, the crying need is men, the kind of men you would like your boy to be. Such men will have faith in boys, for he knows that a boy will strive to be what he thinks you think he is. If you trust him you will help to make him honest. If you think he is unreliable, you help to make him so.

Adolescent boys need tactful, sympathetic men's leadership if we are to hold our boys and lead them in the paths of righteousness.

Root of All Wisdom. Burns: To know prudent, cautious self-control is wisdom's root.

MIAMI.

Boston.—Louis A. Wright, general manager of the Miami Copper Co., is in Boston. He says:

"Affairs at the Miami are going very smoothly, though not as fast as we would like, as we have been delayed by the failure to extend the Gila Valley, Globe, & Northern Railroad to our mines upon schedule time. We are no longer doing any development work at the Miami our underground work being devoted to blocking out ore. By that I mean that we have not gone below a depth of 570 feet, our lowest workings, nor have we extended the ore body beyond the present limits. I think the Miami deposit so far as developed at 12,000,000 tons of ore.

"I figure that it will be just about a year before our concentrator is completed and we will be numbered among the producing copper properties."

GOSSIP OF THE COPPERS.

Two churn drills still working on the Inspiration, and 14 holes have been put down, sampling them all and giving highly favorable returns.

Cordova now contemplates drilling on its Willard, Orocopia, Spring and Jennie claims, due to recent discoveries of fine ore bodies. The Joseph Bosch of the Inspiration is located about 550 feet from the Cordova's north boundary line. It is believed that the Joe Bosch ore body extends to the Cordova property. The Black Warrior has opened a body of calcopite, disseminated in the same kind of gray schist found at the Miami and Inspiration properties, giving 4 per cent copper. The company is shipping 100 tons of ore daily to the El Paso smelter, averaging between 10 and 11 per cent copper. The Werner shaft is to be uncased and sinking there has been resumed.—J. A. Minner & Co.
